SHARKS, SHARKS, AND MORE SHARKS!

IT'S A SHARK EXTRAVAGANZA AT POINT DEFIANCE ZOO & AQUARIUM JULY 1-2

Tacoma, Wash. – SHARKS! They're mysterious. They're mesmerizing. And they'll be squarely in the spotlight at Point Defiance Zoo & Aquarium this coming weekend during two days of events dedicated to these much maligned and misunderstood sea animals.

A slate of fun and interactive activities is scheduled all weekend, July 1-2. All activities except participation in Eye-to-Eye Shark Dives are free with admission or membership to the zoo.

The public can see a variety of sharks in the South Pacific Aquarium.

Epaulette and bamboo sharks are small and live with their cartilaginous cousins at Stingray Cove, where visitors can gently touch them.

From there, one can head downstairs to see 16 sharks circling gracefully in the main shark exhibit.

They include massive sandbar, sand tiger and nurse sharks, plus a smaller blacktip reef shark and an exotic-looking Japanese wobbegong shark.

Point Defiance Zoo & Aquarium is a Northwest leader in telling the story of how very much in peril sharks are. Millions are killed every year just for their fins; others die when they're caught up in fishing nets.

People can learn how to help these amazing animals at www.pdza.org/savesharks.

Sharks! weekend is an opportunity to celebrate these graceful and intriguing creatures, get a deeper look at their behavior, and learn about their important role in the ocean ecosystem.

Watch shark, stingray, and fish feeds; touch small sharks; and see members of the public getting up-close underwater views from a cage during our Eye-to-Eye Shark Dive program.

Here's the schedule to watch, see, touch:

- 11 a.m. Saturday: Watch a Shark Feed and see the animals receive enrichment with watermelon and fish in the South Pacific Aquarium.
